Dear Mayo Clinic Platform Product Design team,

I'm applying for the Digital Product Designer – UX role because I've witnessed the impact of Mayo Clinic's commitment to putting the needs of the patient first in all that it does.

Mayo Clinic has been part of my mom's life for nearly two decades. She was diagnosed with a disorder so severe it forced her to retire early. Her doctors didn't know how to help. So when a specialist recommended her to Mayo, it felt like we won the lottery! Mayo has been an effective and caring partner as she's navigated the uncertainty of new, life-long diagnoses.

I have over nine years of healthcare UX experience and co-founded a Best in KLAS Remote Patient Monitoring platform, CareSignal. Some of my work has:

- Enabled unique workflow transformations with the clinician application I designed:
  - One nurse safely overseeing 1,500 patients with complex conditions instead of 100
  - One medical assistant monitoring 300 patients, tasking to nurses as necessary
  - One medical assistant, nurse, and doctor supporting 3,250 patients per shift
- Increased CareSignal's enrollment call-center volume 37% to 192,000+ calls per quarter
- Increased enrollment rates for hard-to-reach patients from 5% to 21% in three months

None of that work happened in a vacuum. As the sole Product Designer, I led our product road map and cross-departmental initiatives between Engineering, Account Success, Sales, and Marketing. I shadowed nurses and doctors, interviewed patients, reviewed literature, and used data to inform design decisions. I pitched and tested concepts and prototypes with executives, managers, and everyday users to design workflows with our users and for their needs across service journeys.

Mayo Clinic Platform is designing for patients and clinicians at a scale and with a research rigor that is exciting to me. And the way Mayo Clinic writes about its Mission and Values resonates deeply. I hope to work with a product team that keeps people first across everything they build.

Thank you for your consideration,

C Stavridis (they/them) • Senior Product Designer
Portfolio • hey.c@stavridis.codes • (928) 713-3945 • Saint Louis, MO 63104